Schedule Mapping

Dislike

List activities that are typically strongly negative, disliked or avoided for the individual:

OK

List activities that are typically neutral (i.e., can take it or leave it) for the individual:

Reinforcing

List activities that are typically enjoyable, positive and preferred by the individual:

Instructions: When identifying activities be as descriptive and specific as possible to help discriminate amongst preferred and less preferred activities (e.g., watching movies or credits is more descriptive than watching television and both activities may differ in level of preference). When utilizing the activities listed, generally red (i.e., least preferred) activities are followed by green (i.e., preferred) activities and green are followed by yellow (i.e., indifferent) or green to ease the transitions between activities.

© 2007, HANDS in Autism® Interdisciplinary Training & Resource Center. For questions or permission to use, copy, or distribute, please contact Naomi Swezy, PhD, NSwezy@iupui.edu. Created by P. Korzekwa. Last revised: 08/2014